About the Photographer

Formerly a photography and art teacher, Flossie began pursuing professional photography on a full-time basis at the age of 30. As a portrait artist who seeks to capture the light within each of her subjects, she challenges herself to continually create photographs from the heart. Flossie's creations have deeply touched many families on the Monterey Peninsula, and her highly successful talent shines from each dramatic pose.

"For me, photography started on a family camping trip a long time ago when my Dad showed me how to take nature photographs with his old Argus C3. While traveling and working in Europe at 21, photography became my passion. It was like a light bulb went on in my head. A longtime Ansel Adams fan, I saw an extensive show of his original work in San Francisco and became even more appreciative of his amazing skill, immersing myself in the art of photography. The darkroom became my sanctuary - red lights glowing, radio humming and hands in pungent chemicals that brought my concepts to life. I received my BFA in Art with a minor in Art History from California State University at Chico. Eventually my path led back to the coast of California and to Monterey. Photographing my sister's young children, I discovered my love for finding the spirit inside of people - and capturing it. I constantly search for that "twinkle" in the eye, and try to catch it in just the right light. Now the darkroom is my computer and my passion for photography has thankfully become my day's work."

Thoughts about Clothing

medium tones make excellent portraits avoid solid white shirts except under other clothing simplicity is the key

solid colors are best
